Harlan Coben, Gamma '84: Master of Suspense (and the zippy one-liner)

Harlan Coben, Gamma '84
(Amherst College)

“You never meant to kill him.”

In the Harlan Coben, Gamma '84, novel, The Innocent, Matt Hunter, a junior at Bowdoin College is returning to school after Christmas break when his roommate talks a reluctant Matt into checking out a fraternity party on the UMass Amherst campus. At the party push comes to shove, literally. Matt tries to stop a fight but ends up killing another student.

Coben's novels cover a lot of familiar Psi U territory. Myron Bolitar, self-described “king of the zippy one-liner” is a Duke alumnus whose best friend, Windsor Horne Lockwood, III is a product of Philadelphia's Main Line (as well as being the scariest man Myron knows).

Much of the action in the eight books of the Myron Bolitar series and Coben's five stand-alone novels takes place in the genteel environs of suburban New Jersey and some in the, well, decidedly less so. His characters come from Psi U stock; the professional class living in suburbs which Coben calls the “last battleground of the American dream.” For the most part they live happy, successful lives; until Coben gets his hands on them.

In his most recent book, Promise Me, genuine good guy Myron Bolitar overhears two girls, seniors in high school and family friends, talking about the all-too-common and all-too-dangerous mistake of getting into a car with someone who has been drinking. Myron makes them promise to call him at any time, day or night, should they ever find themselves in a bind and afraid to call their parents.

The call comes several nights later and true to his word, Myron picks up one of the girls in midtown Manhattan and delivers her to the home of a friend at the end of a quiet cul-de-sac in New Jersey. The girl disappears and Myron is the last to see her.

Not only does much misfortune fall upon people of good fortune who we might recognize as ourselves, Coben's plots flow from tiny things often found in the white noise of our everyday lives: a webcam, a video enabled cell phone, a PDA.

Even though Coben's books, characters and settings are decidedly American, he has reached the top of best seller lists in Great Britain, France and more than a dozen other nations. In fact his first book to be turned into a film, Tell No One, is one of the most highly anticipated French movies of 2006. Filmed in Paris, Ne le dis à Personne, stars Kristin Scott Thomas and popular French actors Nathalie Baye and Francois Cluzet. The film will be released in France in October.

“They kept very, very true to the story,” Coben said, “but it's French, so instead of being the New York-New Jersey area, it's Paris and the outskirts of Paris. Instead of David Beck, he's Alec Beck and her name is not Elizabeth it's Margot. Their dog is no longer a muted collie, but it's a French Briard.”

The director showed Coben an early cut before subtitles were added. “I could follow the story, but couldn't understand a word,” said Coben who does not speak

French, but who does make a cameo appearance in the film. In a fan newsletter Coben jokes, “I was only on for maybe fifteen seconds and don't talk, but I still expect some kind of Best Supporting Oscar nod.”

At one time there was talk of a Myron Bolitar television series, while the first of the series, Deal Breaker, has been bought by Columbia Sony Studios.

A few Gamma brothers have found themselves in Coben's books. Psi Upsilon Executive Council term member, Martin Brayboy, Gamma '84, makes an appearance in Just One Look (as a disreputable character, of course). And Myron's best friend Win is loosely based on Coben's best friend, Jim Bradbeer, Gamma '84.

Another of Coben's Psi Upsilon brothers from the Gamma chapter had published several novels with limited success and asked Coben to look at his next book in manuscript form. After reading The DaVinci Code, Coben offered to do what he could to help Dan Brown, Gamma '86 promote the new book.

In March 2003 Coben walked into a Barnes & Noble and saw that of the best sellers Dan Brown was number one and his new book, No Second Chance, was number two. "It's been that way at one point in the UK and at one point in France also. Hopefully Psi U is happy about that."

Harlan Coben's most recent books, The Innocent, Just One Look, No Second Chance, Tell No One and Gone for Good, have appeared on all the major bestseller lists including The New York Times, The Times of London, Le Monde, Publishers Weekly, Los Angeles Times, Wall Street Journal and USA TODAY.

Published in 34 languages, Coben's work has earned him the Mystery Writers of America Edgar Allan Poe Award, the Shamus Award of the Private Eye Writers of America and the Anthony Award at the World Mystery Conference. Coben is the first author to win all three and he was the first writer in more than a decade to be invited to write fiction for The New York Times Op-Ed page. His Father's Day short story, The Key to My Father, appeared June 15, 2003.

When Book-of-the-Month Club launched what its chief executive Markus Wilhelm called its "global marketing initiative," offering an International Book of the Month,

Coben's thriller, No Second Chance, was the first selection. It is set in suburban New Jersey, but Wilhelm says, "It's the kind of book no one can put down." President

"Harlan Coben is the modern master of the hook-and-twist—luring you in on the first page, only to shock you on the last."

—Dan Brown, Gamma '86
Author of "The DaVinci Code"

Clinton was even seen clutching the book upon leaving the hospital after his heart bypass surgery in 2004.

Harlan Coben was born in Newark, New Jersey in 1962. He earned a political science degree from Amherst and played college basketball. He worked in the travel industry before becoming a writer and his first book was published when he was 26. Coben says most of the close college friends he keeps in touch with are Psi U's. In fact, he met his wife, Anne Armstrong-Coben, Gamma '85, at Amherst. Members of Psi U's Gamma chapter, they played basketball for Amherst. "Everyone is always confused when I explain that my wife is one of my fraternity brothers," he said. Armstrong-Coben is a pediatrician and the couple has four children ages five through 12.

"I'm a stay at home dad who is also working, so that keeps me pretty grounded," said Coben. "Promise Me will be the sixth New York Times Best Seller in a row ... but every morning I've got to get the kids off to school, make their lunches and drive them to baseball and lacrosse." ♦

The Value of Psi Upsilon

"I can point out many specific examples where Psi U has been a crucial part of my path toward getting a job. Guidance from older brothers showed me my major wasn't right for me. Being elected to positions in the chapter gave me leadership experience. Most importantly, being a member of Psi U gave me confidence."

Community Service

While community service is a year round endeavor, Psi Upsilon spotlights chapter service projects during the month of November as brothers volunteer on campus and in their communities. Among the many projects tackled by brothers in 2005 were fundraisers for the Red Cross and relief efforts after Hurricane Katrina as well as canned food drives, tutoring and educational activities for children.
